Foreword

We present our book with the hope that the reader may wander happily, as Alice did, through our "Wonderland" of memories.

For you of 1929, who are passing from the soft shadows of St. Joseph's, may it be a pleasant renewal of your dream of youth.

Dedication

To those who see the beautiful in the wind twisted clouds of a summer day; who dream 'neath the star spattered sky of a poet's night; whose hearts cherish unspoken words, we dedicate this book, trying to understand the charming wistfulness of the lives of all idealists.

"Begin at the beginning and go on till you come to the end, then stop."

Our School

St. Joseph's High School in 1928-1929 had an enrollment of two hundred students, distributed as follows: thirty-two Seniors, fifty-three Juniors, forty-two Sophomores, and seventy-three Freshmen. This was an increase of thirty students over the previous scholastic year.

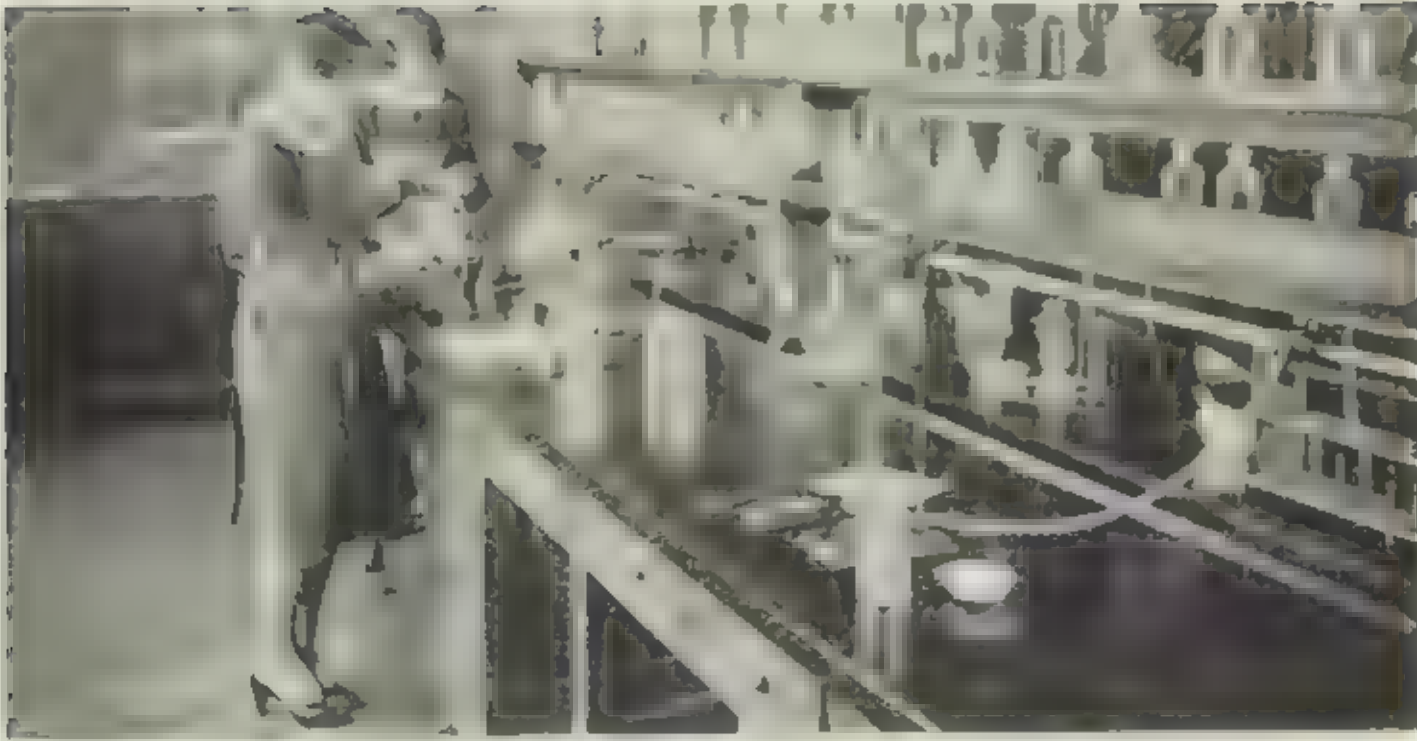

The four-year classical course is accredited to the State University, Ann Arbor. Four years of Latin are offered, two units are required for graduation. The two-year French course is open to third and fourth year students. Those intending to enter college especially avail themselves of this course. Stenography and Bookkeeping are likewise offered in the last two years. Art is an elective, open to all students of the High School. Three major sciences—Biology, Chemistry, Physics—are listed; two credits are required for graduation.

The school employs the State standard system of grading students. Examinations are held biannually—at the close of each semester. Reports to parents are made out four times during the year, at which times also the names of the honor students are published in the local paper.

Music, instrumental and vocal, is given its rightful place both as to cultural value and as licit and adequate expression of the super-abounding spirits of growing boys and girls.

St. Joseph's High School belongs to the Michigan High School Debating League and enters contestants yearly in the state Oratorical and Declamatory contests.

Our School

The school library consists of fourteen hundred volumes, including reference material pertinent to all subjects on the curriculum.

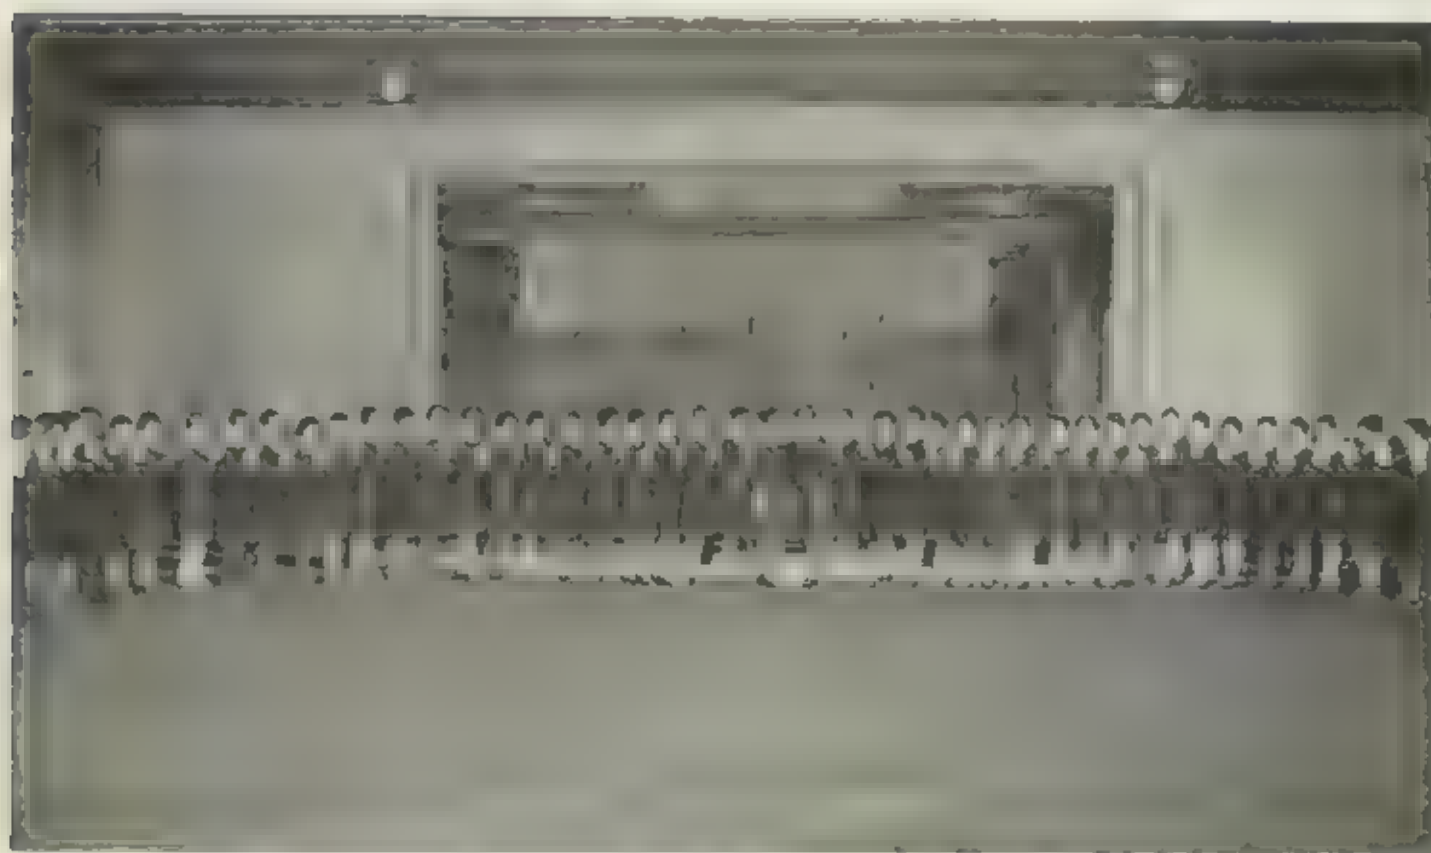

Despite the fact that we have no gymnasium, keen interest is shown in athletics. Throughout the year, competitive sports for boys are in charge of competent directors. Football, basketball, tennis and track supply a sufficiently diversified schedule to satisfy all the boys. The lack of athletics for girls is keenly felt, but this we hope will be remedied in the very near future.

THE PURPLE AND GOLD, the school publication, is put out annually by the Senior Class. It is a resume in print and picture of the year's activities—scholastic, social, athletic.

The girls of the High School wear a uniform consisting of a navy blue dress with white collars and cuffs, and black stockings and oxfords.

"Virtus et scientia" is the motto of the school. It is the aim of the administrative body of the institution to help boys and girls in the biggest way possible, that is to help them to live.

Our School

Achievements of 1928-1929

THE PURPLE AND GOLD of '28 was rated as an All American "Pace-maker" by the National Scholastic Press Association.

St. Joseph's High, as a member of the Michigan Debate League, scored three victories, and was in the running for U. P. honors.

Mildred Meyer, declaimer, placed first in the sub-district meet at Newberry, April 12.

A String Ensemble was added to the Music Department.

Jack and Rowan Fitzharris, our tennis stars, won the Doubles Championship; Rowan carried off the U. P. Singles Championship.

*"We went to school in the sea—
We had the best of educations—
Reeling and Writhing to begin with, and then the different branches of Arithmetic."*

Senior Review

"Time and tide wait for no man," and now we are standing at the door of life, gazing longingly at the rosy sunset of our high school days, and we see reflected in that gorgeous setting the mighty deeds of our Senior year.

Class election was delayed and our curiosity was greatly aroused, speculation ran high. The year appeared very optimistic as far as class leaders were concerned. They were: George Stoik, President, Rowan Fitzharris, Vice President, John Larson, Treasurer, Evelyn Rapin, Secretary.

The bugle called early in the year for football candidates. We are proud of the fact that there were nine Seniors on the Varsity and also that we had good, dependable "subs." The honorary captain of the team was Stafford Le Duc. In basketball we were led by our "wizard" Alted Krollman, and he received loyal support from other Senior members on the Varsity. Our track team was again strengthened by Seniors.

We are depending on the two Senior members of the team, "Red" Fitzharris and "Al" Krollman, to again carry off championship honors in the U. P.

Our intellectual feats, however, are even more imposing. In September, six of the class attended the biannual "A" student luncheon; in February, five students represented the Seniors. In debating we again held the floor. That is where the School—the Seniors—are at their best. The team qualified for the second elimination round. It is only just that we mention their names: Michael Stern, George Stoik, Rowan Fitzharris, John Larson, and John Cinger. The school was represented by Bernadette Brennan in the State Oratorical Contest.

Neither are we laggards in the fine arts. We have a large representation in both the symphony orchestra and the string ensemble. Our Glee Clubs are greatly bolstered by our Senior voices. Dramatic Art is receiving our full attention with pleasing success.

This year cannot exactly be called an outstanding one socially, but the Seniors took part heartily. The first notable social event was the annual Thanksgiving Dance given by the Parent Teacher's Association. A new feature was "outside bids" which all, and especially the Senior boys, hated with glee. A new event on the calendar was the Sophomore Hop, it is enough, we think, to say it was a masquerade. "The thing," of course, is always the Junior Prom. It was long anticipated and long remembered. We really must give a hearty toast to the Juniors for their cordiality. If the Seniors could, we would repay them.

Time is speeding on to the great moment in every graduate's life—Commencement—when fond memories of school and classmates are brought back vividly and sweetly.

The slowly setting sun lovingly sends its last golden rays on the members of the Senior Class, while our Alma Mater smiles and says "good-bye" forever.

On September 4, seventy-six students entered St. Joe's High. Although every one was welcome, we were looked upon with dismay rather than with joy, for the Freshman instructor realized that seventy-six students were too many for any teacher. After due deliberation, it was decided to divide the class. The boys were placed in one room and the girls in another. In this way classes started, each group realizing that the arrangement would not be as pleasant with classmates separated. We were together in spirit, and at all the social events of the year.

Stirring news broke our uneventful school life. Rumors that we were to be initiated by the Sophs reached our ears. How we prayed that they would forget all about us and skip that part of the tradition! Yet we found we could not escape the Sophs. They had waited a whole year to get revenge on a Freshman class. We, their victims, were told to get ready for the great day. At last it came and with fear in our hearts we took our places. After awhile we forgot our fears and were soon enjoying ourselves at the expense of our classmates. We had now earned the right to take part in all school activities.

The "A" students banquet was the next event that included some of our members. We were represented by Alta Brotherton, Kathleen Todd, and Grant Larson. Many of us, however, decided during the next semester to work harder and so increase the number of Freshman representatives.

We are indeed proud of the record of our first year in high school at St. Joe's. We are looking forward to a successful Sophomore year—a big initiation of future Freshmen and, above all—a united class!

highest price ever given for a holograph book.

Chapter 1

Alice was beginning to get very tired of sitting by her sister on the bank, and of having nothing to do once or twice she had peeped into the book her sister was reading, but it had no pictures or conversations in it, and where is the use of a book thought Alice, without pictures or conversations? So she was considering in her own mind, (as well as she could, for the hot day made her feel very sleepy and stupid,) whether the pleasure of making a daisy-chain was worth the trouble of getting up and picking the daisies, when a white rabbit with pink eyes ran close by her.

There was nothing very remarkable in that, nor did Alice think it so very much out of the way to hear the rabbit say to itself "dear, dear! I

Literary

Alice Tells Us Why.

THE THEME

I am the immortal Alice of "Lewis Carroll's" creation! Some people think me a whimsical child of fairy origin, but surely I must be a fair lady for I have been invited to grace the printed pages of THE PURPLE AND GOLD. They tell me that my "Wonderland" is the theme of the book. How lovely!

The staff has accommodated me on the first page of the Literary Section, but I peeked at the other pages, and saw that the whole book is just like my marvelous dream. I never thought that the Dodo and Mad Hatter would appear in print again, but they've been put here to make me feel at ease.

My life has been so interesting of late, and that is the very reason that the annual staff was attracted by me. The original manuscript sold for seventy five thousand dollars,—and now they say that the price has been doubled, so that means that I'm a lady of means. All people of wealth travel, and I have had one of the loveliest trips that any of the elite have ever taken. The original copy is being sent around the country. You can't imagine how all the happy creatures of Wonderland have been stared at. Gentle reader, so much for that.

Perhaps you think me a talkative creature, but the whimsical choice of this theme has moved me to words. The staff must be admirers of "Lewis Carroll," otherwise they never would have considered this book. Yes, Mr. Dodgson (of course you know that "Lewis Carroll" is his pseudonym) was a man who always understood youth—its whims and fancies—pleasant were those days spent with him—my "Adventures in Wonderland" were written in memory of a summer afternoon. The book pleased me so much, although the author didn't care for the illustrations. How I wish that he could see these in THE PURPLE AND GOLD because he'd like them as much as I do. The "White Rabbit" never looked ritzier in his life. I hope that he will keep on running right through to my section, but very probably he'll stop to talk with the Seniors, because he was all dressed up—even to the white gloves. The Mouse was in the pool of tears the last time I saw him, but he had every intention of telling a long tale to the Juniors. I do hope that the Dodo will behave himself and not upset everybody by sponsoring a "Caucus Race." These creatures worry me sometimes, although they are a winsome crowd.

And now I want to thank you, the Staff of '29, for inviting me and my "Wonderland" friends to come into your book. You may leave and others will take your places, but we shall stay within its covers in memory of you. Next year, when another volume will be edited, we shall still be here waiting for you, wondering where you are, and hoping that you miss us, too.

Michigan's Safety Campaign.

HAROLD FREDERICKSON '29

Prize Essay in "Safety City" Contest Sponsored by the Michigan State Police and Mutual Liability Company

With the increasing traffic and congested business streets which mark the growth of our state more and more danger surrounds the motorist and the pedestrian. In order to place autoists and pedestrians on an equal basis of rights, safety rules are issued to all, and each and every one enjoys protection at his elbow and privileges of equality. We cannot hope to have a cordon of police at our side to give us that protection but we should adhere to traffic rules and regulations and if we are in an accident, we shall have all the help that goes to a law-abiding citizen. We need not worry about getting "gypped" in the case through graft, because in this country eye witnesses are never wanting.

A few years ago the motorist was clamoring for a set of rules which would take but little time to learn and a long time to forget, so through executive concentration and research work, the chief causes of accidents and their most frequent occurrences were put into a set of rules, covering all manner of mishaps which would leave no room for the old adage, "I skipped that rule among the hundreds of rules that a poor motorist must know." These rules could be learned in a short time and as the driver approached an intersection, all these rules would take their places in front of his eyes and make themselves conspicuous. They are common and prevalent to all, are the fault of the pedestrian as well as of the motorist, although not all accidents occur between pedestrian and operator.

These are the most frequent accidents of our present day: jay-walking, crossing streets through heavy traffic, and rushing ahead as the amber light appears. Then there are the arterials, disregarding of signal lights, discourtesy and speeding up to assert claims of "right-of-way."

These are the main factors and points for which "Safety City" is erected. For this achievement a splendid replica of Detroit's shore line and busiest streets are portrayed, with every traffic convenience from trains and semaphores to the people on the street. All that is missing are engines in the miniature automobiles and buses. Accidents, as those recorded, are actually made to happen in the eyes of the people and all an observer needs to do is to put himself in place of any car he wishes and receive his instruction from the other cars. What more can anyone do to apply "an ounce of prevention" before a "cure" is needed? The campaigners cannot go and take your own car into an accident just to show you the cause and what rule applies to it. No! You must see the accidents happen without injury to yourself or your car and that is the aim of the Mutual Liability Company of Michigan. This "Safety City" is only one of their endeavors and ought to be the goal and success of the company in their work of making Michigan safe for everyone. The liability companies have done more than their share and should be allowed to sit back and let the people carry on. All they need now is the hearty co-operation of the life-loving citizen and if they notice accidents decreasing, even in a small percentage, they shall know that their goal is realized.

The "Safety City" is the last word in traffic campaigning and if this does not succeed then the fault lies in the careless and negligent citizens who ought to be kept in a playground surrounded by high walls, where they can take care of themselves and molest nobody.

Old Glory's Greatest Glory.

EDMUND GODIN '31

Essay entered in "Flag" Contest sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary

The greatest glory of a free-born people is to transmit that freedom to their children.—
Harvard

The oppressed on foreign shores saw it—a faint, indistinct nebula enveloped by the heavy clouds of tyranny. Yet in the fury of a terrible storm, the burdensome mists, which had bound men for centuries, gave way before the brilliance of a crystallizing constellation—thirteen stars proclaiming "liberty and justice for all." This banner pointed out the promised land of freedom. It was the American Flag.

Formed by the loyal hands of women, defended by the willing might of men, and honored by the eager hearts of children, that Flag recounts a fascinating story in each color.

Born in the thickest of a Revolution, obscured by smoke of battles and torn by screeching shells, it emerged from it all—the emblem of a new nation. It bore the red of courage, steeped in precious human blood spilled for the cause of liberty. Yankee courage, marked by the red, sustained it at Valley Forge. At Antietam and Gettysburg it withstood the test. And again at the Marne, loyal American blood deepened its hue. Yet all this was not in vain, for along with the red floats the white of liberty.

For priceless freedom visualized in that stainless white, generations struggled. The deeper the red became, the purer the white was bleached. It was what our fore-fathers struggled for, it is what we must keep, liberty—the white of the Flag, the soul of the nation.

In the blue there lies the loyalty and self sacrifice marked by thousands of white crosses in our own and foreign lands, beneath which valiant American soldiers sleep eternally. They willingly died that their Flag might live on as the emblem of a free people. In peace and in war that blue binds us all, regardless of race or creed, in one communion—"All for One, and One for All."

Altogether—red, white and blue have led, and continue to lead on an increasing and unified people until now, the sun never sets on the folds of "Old Glory."

When the freedom for which our forefathers strove was obtained, the "Stars and Stripes" turned elsewhere to uphold liberty and right. Down trodden peoples, incited by the red and white rays from that starry field of blue, arose with the cry for liberty and the thrones of monarchs trembled and fell.

Today, after all her years of progress and glory, the Emblem of Freedom selects from all her subjects an individual group which she holds high above all others, upon whom her future depends. Not our forefathers who created her, not the heroic soldiers or noble statesmen who defended her, but the rising generation which will replace them—the men and women of tomorrow. They must man the Ship of State. They must keep unfurled the sails of Freedom. They are Old Glory's Greatest Glory.

Attar of Roses.

Over the sea there rose a mist of whispering lace—gulls patterned the wind—the sun in its dying glow transformed the cliffs into mounds of butterscotch. Sheila looked old as she stood watching the passing of day. The angels "had hung out the moon" and the stars had come to be the checkers on the sky board before Sheila let a dreamy sigh ripple from her butterfly lips. Indeed, her life was lonely, and the memory of Meara haunted her as perfume does a coat where a head has lain. Her one comfort was the piano, and on this evening she entered the room where the Steinway stood. Narcissus bloomed sweetly on the mantle, fiery snapdragons grew in a black vase, and a soft lamplight crept over the place as Sheila sat down to play. Her touch was like the sweeping of weeping willows over a lagoon. Plaintive sorrowful music rose on the air, and floated into the woodland, so that the elves raised their heads from their pillows of peach down and, throwing back the mouse fur coverlets, rose and scampered to the window sill. The mischievous ones spent their time sliding down the silken drapes, but those who were old enough to appreciate let fairy tears fall on their lounging robes.

Sheila had one tie upon the world—a society friend—Carla, the romantic, who was much younger than she. One day Sheila received a deckled envelope, fragrant with azure scent. Opening the epistle with a quick movement she read that her last love had married, and was preparing to sail for Europe. Carla said that she loved him, because he sang Parafal so magnificently. Sheila was broken hearted for Carla could never be happy. Her tastes would be so different—she who loved to make croquettes for tea—who always ordered a phosphate cherry at that—she who constantly demanded crystallized ginger, and preferred it to after dinner mints to be associated with one of a musical temperament. Sheila's eyes filled up with hot tears—the end had come—she was alone.

Sheila played the hours away—every other selection was Schubert's Serenade. In response to the sound of the knocker she opened the door, as Romance struck the hour. A girl dressed in a traveling suit smiled heavenly at her, introducing herself as Davida, and as she passed her Sheila noticed that she carried a violin. Davida asked to stay until the ferry sailed for the mainland. After tea, Sheila requested her to play and the girl replied that she would if her hostess would accompany her. With the skill of an artist Davida played The Scarf Dance and at Sheila's request, the Serenade.

Eight-thirty found them parting at the ship, and Sheila accepted her guest's invitation to return the call. She walked back slowly to her solitary home, feeling strange. Davida's presence haunted her—those heavenly eyes—that tiny smile, and the lovable manner reminded her so much of Meara.

An elegantly dressed woman gave the cab driver the order to "just drive around." Her spirits craved city life, and her soul music. Sheila went to the theater. As she sat in her box she noticed that the seats formerly occupied by her friends were vacant. The program went on with great flourish. After the intermission there seemed to be a pleasant stir of expectancy. The curtain rose and a violinist, a young girl, stepped from the wings amidst great applause. She smiled a tiny smile and began to play The Scarf Dance which took the house, and as an encore, Schubert's Serenade. Sheila was enraptured, as well as surprised. After the musicale she dashed to the stage door where she met Davida, who was just leaving. They went to Davida's apartment together, where they had dinner. During the courses they had time to talk of many things, and the time came for Sheila to leave. Davida begged Sheila to go with her on her European concert tour as her accompanist, but Sheila said that she would think it over, and write her answer.

A month later as Davida sat at breakfast the maid brought a message in an envelope edged in black. Sheila was gone, her last love was torn from her heart, the Serenade played for the last time. Sheila's life ended as it was sad, and she died not knowing that Davida was Meara's sister.

Student Council

"It were 9 o'clock in the morning—just time to begin lessons."

C. ALLINGHAM M. FREDRICKSON R. FITZHARRIS B. BRENNAN E. GODIN

"All great things have humble beginnings"—so we feel safe in saying that the Student Council will do great things next year. The project was introduced in February and was met with great enthusiasm by the High School. The Student Council was an experiment, but we think that it was a success in its own small way. A Student government system is a credit to a High School. First, the Faculty places implicit confidence in the student body, and that group puts forth its best to prove "true."

Every Thursday we held forth at General Assembly—plans were made, schemes concocted, in fact, everything was done to cultivate a co-operative spirit among the students, and to stimulate interest in all things scholastic. The meetings were closed with a peppy chorus of "Oh, St. Joseph's" and between times the Freshmen became acquainted with the upper classmen.

The classes will not forget the proverbial "two minute talking period" between classes. The Student Council actually gave us those one hundred and twenty seconds (one hundred and twenty seconds sounds more magnanimous) to us freely. Many a booster speech was given urging school spirit.

We hope that in the future the student body will be united for one purpose, namely, to do everything which will make for a greater St. Joe's.

St. Joseph's High School has good speakers and has them in abundance. Competition has always run high among the students, to have the honor of representing the school in the sub-district contest.

The oratorical contest was held February 25. The contestants and their orations were as follows: George Stoik, "Unto These Arms," a defense of capital punishment; John Larson, "Capital Punishment"; Norbert Todd, "What Is It All Coming To?"; Mary Bernadette Brennan, "Buy a Poppy?"—a plea for the American National Red Cross.

The declamatory contest followed a week later. Lorraine Ammel gave "The American Flag" by Henry Ward Beecher; Mildred Meyer, "Touissant L'Ouverture"; Clyde Hirn, "The Responsibility of War," by William E. Channing.

Mary Bernadette Brennan, orator, and Mildred Meyer, declaimer, represented St. Joseph's in the sub-district contest held at Newberry, April 12. Our declaimer won the honors and represented St. Joseph's in the district meet at Marquette, April 30.

This was St. Joseph's second year in interscholastic debating and an outstanding one. Our debaters held an enviable position from the first, and as the season ripened their ability was universally recognized among the best debaters in the peninsula.

The affirmative team, John Olinger, Eugene Raymond and John Larson, opened their season with a victory, gaining the unanimous decision of three judges. We have only this to say of the rest of the season, individually every affirmative member was a credit both to his team and to his school and the season was a wholesome success.

The negative was excellently upheld by Michael Stern, George Stoik and Rowan Fitzharris. All three were veteran debaters, and this year they set a pace that few teams could follow. The negative maintained a clean slate this year, coming through the season undefeated. Their activity and experience in public speaking, backed by their knowledge of the question debated this year, proved too great an obstacle for both Escanaba and Gladstone to overcome. We regret to say that the entire team will be lost through graduation.

Debate Season

AFFIRMATIVE	NEGATIVE	DECISION
Escanaba	St. Joseph's	St. Joseph's
St. Joseph's	Kingsford	St. Joseph's
Gladstone	St. Joseph's	St. Joseph's
St. Joseph's	Vulcan	Vulcan
St. Joseph's	Gwinn	Gwinn

St. Joseph's High entered the Michigan Debate League and made a gallant start in the state of State honors. The question under discussion was resolved: That a Federal subsidy for the development of an American Merchant Marine would be a wise national policy.

The season opened with the Escanaba-St. Joe debate. Our negative scored a victory over the opposing team.

Kingsford was next on our schedule. The debate was held in our auditorium and the three votes of the judges went for us.

Gladstone, the last engagement on our card before the holidays, seemed to be one of the best teams in the League, but we tasted victory again.

After the Christmas holidays we had a bump. Our steady ride to triumph was retarded when Vulcan entertained and defeated our affirmative squad.

Our teams had gained twelve out of a possible sixteen points and consequently were qualified to enter the elimination round. Gwinn met us on the home floor—John Larson, Michael Stern, Rowan Fitzharris upheld the affirmative. The decision was against us.

Nor did we cease at this point—Kingsford invited us to engage in a non-decision debate. March 19 we journeyed to keep our engagement. The boys appreciate the courtesy of Kingsford High.

In April the team presented their case before the Knights of Columbus at their club house. The Senior debaters will be presented with gold pins by the Knights of Columbus.

The student body knows that, win or lose, we had one of the best teams in the state.

The Forum is a club that was organized for the purpose of promoting the art of public speaking. It has served its purpose well, for in its two years of organized study, it has given six boys to the debating squad, and also six alternates who have been studying under the regulars and will be ready to take up the work next fall. The club boasts of eighteen members who are exceptionally good speakers, due to the experience derived from the club.

The Forum is wholly responsible for the production of St. Joseph's star speakers. One could readily detect Forum speakers at banquets, or at pep meetings when they were called upon for impromptu speeches on any subject.

The six alternates of the regular debate team gave a debate before the Student Council Assembly. They made a very good showing of their skill, and much is expected of them next year. The question debated was, Resolved: That a Waterway Should be Constructed from the Great Lakes to the Ocean.

"You can't think how glad I am to see you again," said the Duchess as she tucked her arm into Alice's affectionately. "Where have you been all this time?"

"Why! I have been busy watching the progress of the Boys' Dramatic Club at St. Joe's. I enjoy them so much!" exclaimed Alice.

"Do tell me about them," said the Duchess.

"It's a long story," said Alice as she took a deep breath, for she had much to say concerning the club. "About the middle of this year some new clubs were organized. Among them was the Boys' Dramatic Club. It was a great idea, for there was much hidden talent. Of course the club members profited much by joining it for they got over their 'stage fright' and appeared at ease before the public. A play, comedy skits and monologues have been given at Student Council assemblies. You should have seen the play A Mad Tea Party. I'll bet Shakespeare laughed when he saw his masterpiece, Hamlet, turned into a comedy. That's all," said Alice, sinking on the grass, exhausted from her long speech.

"Those boys must be full of pep. I must go to St. Joe's and see them act some day," said the Duchess, and bid Alice good-bye.

The Caterpillar and Alice looked at each other for some time in silence. At last the Caterpillar addressed her in a sleepy voice

"Well, Alice, what's on your mind?"

"Well, sir, I hear you are quite brilliant, and I have come to ask you for a quotation that would be fitting for the Girls' Dramatic Club."

"The Girls' Dramatic Club, pray, who are they? Tell me all about them."

"Well," began Alice, "not long ago the girls formed a dramatic club. They're a peppy bunch, Mr. Caterpillar, and how they can act! Their biggest success was a playlet, Sing a Song of Seniors. The club's efforts won much praise during the year."

"How many girls are there in the club, Alice?" inquired the Caterpillar.

"Oh, about twice as many as you could imagine," said Alice.

"Let's see," said the Caterpillar, "that means twenty-nine members. Do you want a characteristic quotation for them? Let me think. You say that the members are talented? Come back next month, Alice, I'll have to think a long time, I have an exalted opinion of them."

According to the results of the Scholastic Editor publications of 1928, St. Joseph's annual, THE PURPLE AND GOLD, received an All-American Honor Rating. It was the Pace-maker in its division of schools with an enrollment of less than two hundred. Out of the possible one thousand score points the publication received nine hundred and ten.

"The competitive feature of the All-American contest is considered the least important. Its real purpose is not to create inter-school rivalry, but to provide a means by which staffs may be aided in giving their schools and communities a significant publication. The All-American system of rating seeks to create a desire to improve the quality of the school publications."

This year, for the first time, St. Joseph's School sent delegates to the National Scholastic Press Association Convention held at the University of Minnesota. This is an annual event held for the benefit of student journalists in an effort to improve the quality of high school journalism. Five of the delegates, prospective staff members for 1930, have imbibed the spirit and aim to raise the standard of their annual by placing particular stress on the inspiring journalistic and educational values of a student publication, without losing sight of the traditional purpose of PURPLE AND GOLD staffs, to give to St. Joseph's students a vivid record of their school life in the most attractive and perfect form possible.

Purple and Gold

This is our annual, THE PURPLE AND GOLD of '29, the record of one year of school life! The book is different, in many respects, from others which have appeared, for we have tried to combine the charm of the past with the demand of the present. How well we have succeeded remains to be seen.

All staff members have contributed their services in an unselfish way—section editors, artists and writers of special articles have always been ready to do their part and to do it well. Only those who were behind the scenes and saw the book long before it was between covers can know and appreciate the jovious optimism shown by the editors even while meeting "deadlines."

The Staff of '29 takes this opportunity to congratulate the Staff of '28 on their PURPLE AND GOLD, which was rated as an "All-American, Pacemaker." We have tried to maintain the high standard, and hope that this book may be worthy of you for whom it has been accomplished, students of St. Joseph's High.

Art Staff

"They drew all manner of things."

What would our book be without the art staff? As soup without salt—a barren wasteland—or a desert! The artists give it beauty, grace and charm—all the necessary attributes of an attractive annual. They have worked longer and harder than any other group of artists and shall receive a grateful acknowledgment for their fruitful labors.

The staff members have each a specialty and will be rewarded according to their merit. The lettering on all division pages is credited to Lucille Sauers. The tedious work of trimming and mounting the photo graphs on the panels was done by Lucy Klug and Geraldine Shanahan. The snapshots were arranged and mounted with careful attention to balance by Margaret Beery, Laverne Beery and Mary Stump.

Regina Germaine and Harold Frederickson were our headline artists. To Regina we attribute the fascinating drawings in the small cuts and the border panels. Harold and Regina did all the art work in the opening section. Verna Stockemer and Edward Gauthier assisted them in planning the division pages.

Lest we forget—the heavy job of tinting the pages—a touch of vermilion, a dash of green, were placed hither, thither and yon. The results are ample compensation for the tedious hours. Many thanks to the painters! The editorial and business staff know that whatever merit this publication may attain—the art staff will be responsible in a large degree.

Honor Society

"There was not a moment to be lost."

The Honor Society has as its members those who have received the grade of "A" in all their subjects. It is quite an accomplishment and they are always justly rewarded.

As an incentive to increase the number of honor students, the grades received are published in the local newspaper at the end of each quarter.

Bi-annually the students who have attained the "All-A" grade are invited by the Kiwanis Club of Escanaba to a weekly luncheon. A special speaker is engaged for our benefit and is always greatly appreciated.

The last invitation was given by Mr. Frank Nolden, president of the club, and incidentally an alumnus of St. Joseph's. He praised the work of the students and exhorted others to attain this goal. The "A" students that day went "on parade" for the high school. They were called upon and responded with short speeches. We were overjoyed to see the "All-A's" on the stage, and to find out that they were just like the rest of us.

At the September luncheon the students were addressed by Mr. John P. Norton of the Escanaba Daily Press. The semester "A's" for the scholastic year, 1928-1929, had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Munson of the Northern State Teachers' College. The Kiwanians have shown great interest in our youthful endeavors, encouraging all things educational. The Honor Society is always ready to boost the Kiwanis Club, and proclaim it as one of Escanaba's leading organizations.

Boys' Glee Club

"If you don't see anything you want don't ask for it," said the Hatter as he tuned in on his microphonic telephone. "Well, well, and here is good old station SJHS, giving the program for discontented tadpoles."

"Your ears do not deceive you," said Alice as she settled down to listen to the program.

"The Boys' Glee Club is just coming on the air to spread good music throughout high-school-land."

Just at that moment wonderful sounds filled the air as thirty voices burst into the masterpiece, Summer by Richard Wagner. The melody must have been popular for tremendous applause filled the ears of the listeners at the tea-table. Cries of "More, more" were heard, so the announcer stated that the boys would sing a group of songs which were Hark O'er the Waters, Floating with the Tide and Santa Lucia.

At that moment the Dormouse, who had been asleep, awoke and said, "The pleasure is all mine." He yawned and went back to sleep, only to be aroused again by voices singing I Faw Down and Go Boom.

The program was a feature for Dads' Night. The Hatter wept copious tears when he thought of his little ones at home. Then came the announcement, "Station SJHS signing off until Commencement Night, when the Glee Club will again be on the air."

Girls' Glee Club

"Meet my little friend, Alice, who wishes to hear of your trip to St. Joseph's High School," said the Gryphon, as he led Alice by the hand to where the Mock Turtle stood weeping on the shore.

"Oh, does she?" said the Turtle, his voice muffled with sobs. "The visit was one of the most pleasant happenings in my life. Now don't interrupt me."

"Who's interrupting you?" asked the Gryphon impatiently.

"Oh, hush. Well, you see, it was this way. When I got to Escanaba, a delegation from St. Joe's met me with a brass band and their generous enthusiasm moved me to tears. The crowd accompanied me to the school auditorium, where the Girls' Glee Club was appearing in concert. How they could sing strains of My Mother Bird and Symphony are still ringing in my ears. I could control my feelings no longer, but broke down and wept copiously when those forty-three voices sang Partners."

"How emotional you are!" exclaimed Alice.

"I couldn't help it, my sensitive musical nature was affected by the melody."

"That Glee Club must be good," remarked the Gryphon. "Let's engage them for the 'Wonderland Lyceum'."

The String Ensemble is a new organization in St. Joseph's. It made few appearances, but the individual members spent much time in practice, with very favorable results.

The ensemble made its debut at the Christmas pageant and was highly praised for its work. It also played for a meeting of the Daughters of Isabella, and for some of the debates.

The favorites of our ensemble are the swinging Garden of Eden Waltzes by Bauer, Schubert's rhythmic Marche Militaire, the solemn Ave Verum by Mozart, and the immortal selection from Mascagni's great opera, Cavalliera Rusticana.

The orchestra seems to be a general utility. It plays at debates, entertainments, meetings of the Parent-Teacher's Association, in fact, for all activities held in St. Joseph's auditorium. A special honor came to the orchestra this year when the local Daughters of Isabella made a special request that we play for one of their dinner parties.

This organization has been especially fortunate this year in receiving several cellos and mandolins and copies of new selections. The favorites among these were Under the Eagle, by Wagner; Overture, by Zameczik, and Didonnade, by De Crescenzo.

Camera Club

During the past year there has been great enthusiasm among the high school students to procure "snappy snaps" for the annual. This spirit has grown to such an extent that several boys have become interested in photography and form the nucleus of a Camera Club. Big things are expected!

Requirements for membership are the possession of a camera and an interest in kodak work. Members of the club will be alert at all football games, tennis tournaments and track meets to "stop the big plays." Anywhere, everywhere—beware or they'll catch you! Only the rain can stop them! A new Graflex camera will enable them to get action and more of it. Watch them!

Meetings will be held regularly. A certain number of snaps will be required for continued membership. A contest will be sponsored by the club offering a prize to the student who submits the best snap, the greatest number of acceptable snaps for the annual. Get busy and bring those vacation snaps!

The Librarians

How seldom we think of them, unless we want their services and then we tell them to "hurry up." The girls are good natured except when demanding fines, and they force us to pay for our carelessness.

The life of the librarians is more than we think. Did you ever see a crowd of them mending books in the office some Saturday afternoon? It is a really fascinating job when one gets on to it. The real fun begins in June—the last week of school, the books are shelved and given one last touch until September.

The librarians are appreciated, in fact, we couldn't get along without them because they are the happy medium between us and our dearest friends, books.

The following librarians deserve special recognition for their willing service. Catherine Curran, Bernadette Brennan, Alice McGovern, Helen Gallagher, Eileen Murphy, Violet Bramer, Catherine Murray, Adelaide Laviolette, Mary Stump, Laverne Beery, Jeanette Hanrahan, Fern Stacy, Isadore Clairmont, and Catherine Lewis.

Nineteen members of St. Joseph's High School football squad were awarded Varsity letters at the annual football banquet held in January.

It means something to be a letterman and to wear the "S." A fellow works hard to win the award, he reports for practice every night, keeps training, fights for victory, puts his all into the game and, win or lose, he has to be a good sport and smile off the outcome.

We regret that eleven of the fellows are Seniors and will not play next year. By their fighting spirit they have set a good example for next year's squad. The boys who have done their best and battled for St. Joe's are deserving of much praise, and those who play on the Varsity next season will try to uphold the high standard of sportsmanship.

It is hoped that in the future the Lettermen will make up a formal organization whose members will pledge themselves to encourage everything athletic in St. Joseph's—to show a particular interest in the Freshmen that these underclassmen will "get out" early in their high school career and fight for St. Joe's.

Holy Name Society

The boys of the High School belong to the Holy Name Society, the lower classmen comprising the Junior branch. The organization is one of the most active in the parish—the members receive Holy Communion in a body every second Sunday of the month, and meet the preceding Wednesday. Programs, lectures are arranged for the entire year, but the greatest event seems to be Mother's Day. It has been the custom for the men to receive Holy Communion for their mothers. After the Mass a breakfast is served them in the club rooms of the school.

B. V. M. Sodality

"Every High School girl a member of the Sodality!" was the slogan this year, and how they responded! On Sodality Sunday, the first of the month, the school girls appeared in the regulation uniform and white veils. Meetings were held in the auditorium once a month. At one meeting Rev. F. A. Seifert of Daggett gave an interesting account of his trip to Mexico. The talk was one of the high lights of the year. Dialogues, plays, humorous skits were offered for the entertainment of Sodality members during the course of the year. All the numbers were given by home talent—need we say that some of our performers are destined for stardom?

F. M. U.

The entire student body is enrolled in the Foreign Missionary Union for the propagation of the faith. We feel it our duty to assist, in our own small way, those who labor in some distant corner of a foreign land. The association does not hold meetings, but it does exist and to great avail. Mite Boxes were distributed during Lent to the pupils of the grade and high school. The offerings were sent to the missions. At Christmas time, dolls, candy, books, were shipped to the Catechists, who work with the Mexicans in Gary, Indiana.

*"No grander mission, surely
Could saints or men enjoy,
No heart could love more purely Than yours, my altar boy."*

Our acolytes are in reality "Christ's pages" at His altar-throne. There, next to the priest, they are the closest to God. Indeed, it is sublime to serve Him in so fitting a manner. The altar boys realize this, for in the early morning hours, winter or summer, they are seen hurrying to the sacristy to help the priest prepare for the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

To see these boys serving at the altar in garments of white and black, to hear them respond in Latin to the prayers of the priest, inspires those who attend the Mass. Many of these boys have served their King for ten years, never faltering in their mission. Rain or shine, the priest never had to look for a server. They were always willing to sacrifice their playtime to be at the altar.

Five of the acolytes are among our graduates. New activities and interests will bring them into other fields, but each one will ever remain in heart a fervent "altar boy."

An Alumni means everything to a school; therefore the organization should be kept a living interested body. The St. Joseph High School Alumni has approximately four hundred members from the Class of 1888 to the Class of 1928. The old grads have always taken an interest in school activities because they have only the happiest thoughts for their Alma Mater. St. Joseph's is an Alma Mater in every sense of the word. She takes a pride in her students, and watches them through the years. The Class of Twenty-Nine will continue to boost for a bigger and better Alumni.

Among the graduates of past years we list the following who have shown particular interest in this publication, THE PURPLE AND GOLD of 1929:

Mr. C. J. McCauley of the Class of '95. Mr. McCauley resides at Wells and holds the position of cashier and office manager for the I. Stephenson Co. Trustees.

Mrs. Robert Murray is also of the Class of '95. At present she is at home at 405 North Sellers Street, Hibbing, Minnesota.

Among the graduates of the Class of '98, Mary Barth remains near. During the summer she resides at her home, Villa Loch Ree, R.F.D. No. 1.

Flora Henry, '05, is at present housekeeping at 906 Second Street South, Rochester, Minnesota.

Mary Wachen, '06 is also housekeeping at 709 South First Avenue Escanaba Michigan.

Peter Kieffer, '08, holds the title of Banker for the Guarantee Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago.

Julius P. Schemmel, '13, has attained the position of Superintendent, Mahnomen Mine in Ironton, Minnesota.

Mrs. James Degnan, '17, resides at 1421 First Avenue, Escanaba, Michigan. Mrs. Degnan was formerly Eugenia Thomy.

Louise Godin, '20, is now the Principal of Lake School at Norway, Michigan.

Helen Harland, '28, promises to be one of our future school teachers. At present she is attending the Delta County Normal School.

Lucille Roberge, also of the Class of 1928, is a College Freshman at the Villa in Duluth, Minnesota.

Junior Prom

*"When it's apple blossom time in Normandy,
I want to be in Normandy,
By that dear old wishing well—."*

And all who shared our desire were gratified on May 22, for the auditorium, scene of the Junior Promenade, was a blossomy springtime bower, artistically designed, skilfully executed. The stage was a protusion of the pink room. Quaint wishing wells, at which punch was served during the evening, accentuated the pastoral effect of the scene.

The Wolverines furnished the music; it was quite irresistible, for many who came to look remained to dance.

It is a generally accepted fact that the Junior Prom should supersede every other social event of the school year. Way this is true, we do not presume to explain, since we do not know. However, the class in charge accepted the responsibility of making it a function ne plus ultra, and demonstrated to themselves and their guests the arbitrary working of the law of cause and effect.

The Committee: John Larson, George Stoik, Rowan Fitzharris, Harold Frederickson, Lucile Stockemer, Catherine Curran, Evelyn Rapin, Bernadette Brennan, Celia Frenn.

The Chaperones: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fitzharris, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Brennan, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Curran, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Finley, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Stoik.

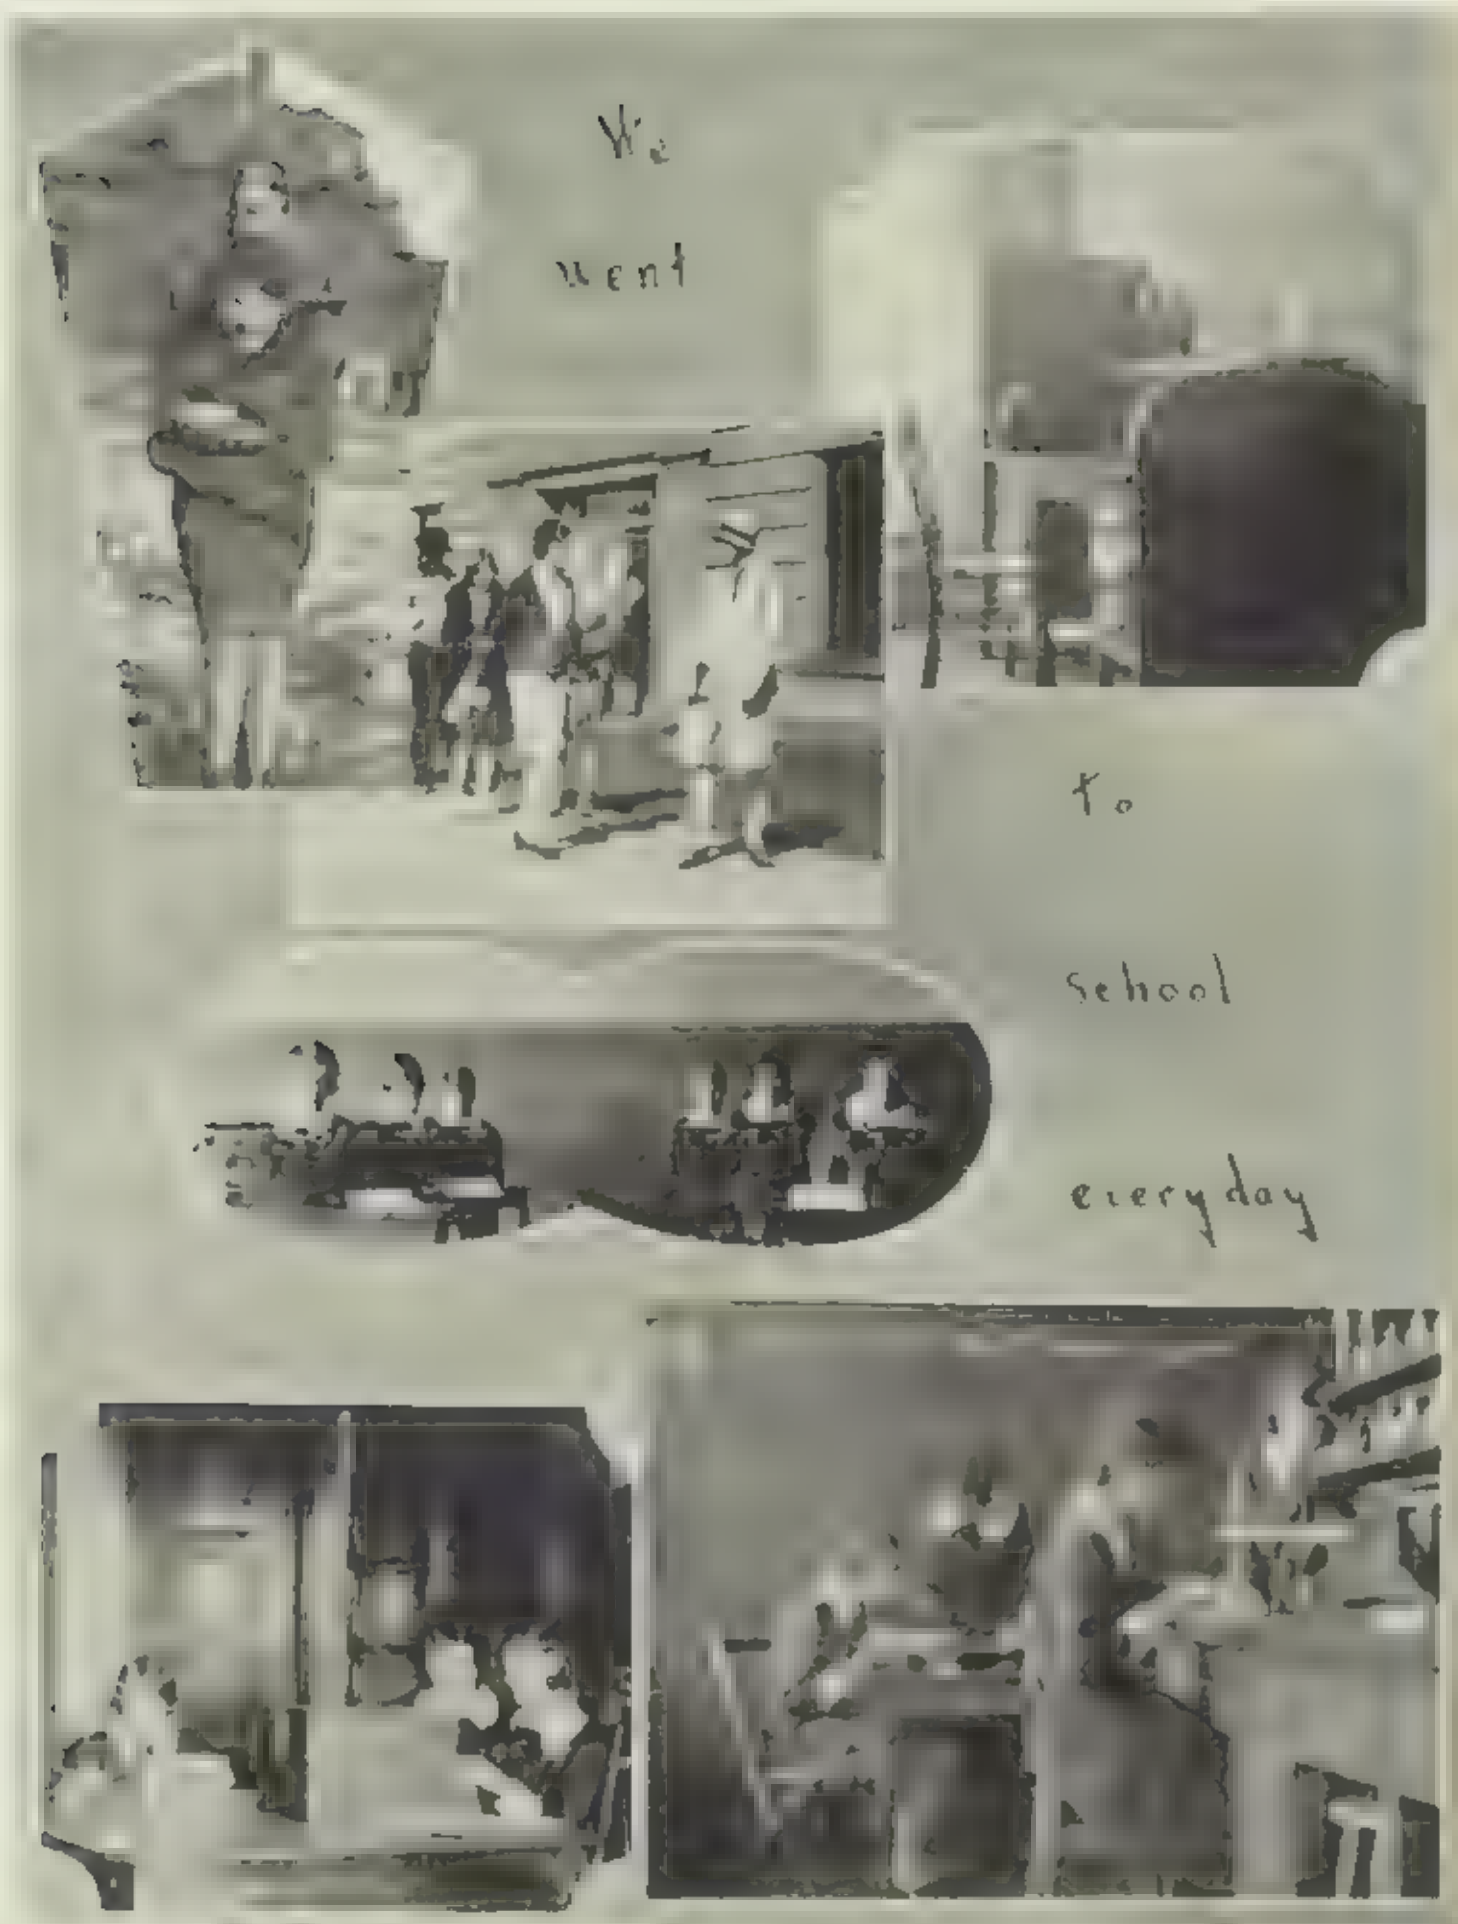

September

- 4 First day of school. A hearty welcome to all! Year's outline was given and inspiring sermon was delivered—the former not so inspiring.
- 6 Regular classes were begun and marching into the assembly to the strains of a Norbert Todd "Specialty March."
13. Mr. Bennett, representative of the Kiwanis Club, invited the "A" pupils to attend the luncheon at the Ludington Hotel, Monday.
- 14 Hark! Hark! A fashion show—the football boys received their new outfits today. Signs of a promising future!
18. The Seniors were visited by the State Police (we weren't arrested, wait a minute), we were extended an invitation to enter an essay contest and to view the miniature "Safety City" at the Fair Grounds. Permission was given to remain for the afternoon—something free, so all Americans must stay!
20. Seen on the Senior Board:
 - "All Good Things Are Ours."
 1. Speeding
 2. Jay Walking
 3. Beating the Car Ahead
 4. Arterial Highways
 5. Improper Parking.
- 21 "Pep" meeting for our first game of the season at Vulcan the following Saturday.
- 22 Big talk with just as big campaigning—Election of class officers this week.
- 24 Prizes were awarded by Mr. Emery, to the winning contestants in the "Safety City" contest. The Plaque was presented to Harold Frederickson. Ten others received bronze medals: Bernadette Brennan, Ilene McDonald, Lucile Stockemer, Donald Skopp, Leonard Racine, Cecile Clement, John Olinger, John Larson, Beulah Kieffer, Evelyn Rapin.
27. Spent the day in the "Frigid-Air."

October

- 7 Rather an advanced or slow Senior Class, for on the way to church the boys began Fourth of July celebrations by shooting off "fire-crackers."
- 8 Won the Baraga game, and the "boys" were all the more anxious to beat Manistique.
- 9 Fr. Bertrand's nameday. An interesting program was given in his honor. We were given a "free" afternoon.
- 17 Miss Agnes Casey, former pupil at St. Joe's, entertained us with vocal selections.
- 21 Congratulations, Class of '28. The announcement was received that their annual was given an "All American" rating.
- 28 Those "endearing charms" pealed forth from the orchestra!
- 29 Visitor from Germany this morning.
31. Election of school reporter. Bob Finley, our "Bell Hop," was given another chance to "hop" to the Press Office occasionally.
31. Juniors took a trip to the Weather Bureau. Don't you wish you were a Junior, Gen?

Come On!

November

- 2 "Pep" meeting for the Baraga game. Pause, a telegram! Baraga "calls off" the game. Pause again! A game has been arranged with St. Norbert's College in place of it.
- 3 The game is over, the banquet is on. What cheers, what talks, what fun, and—what boys! Watch your step, waitresses!
- 5 Calls for basketball men. The response was strong. Senior stars on deck.
- 6 Democratic Rally in the Senior Class! Excitement over election today. We're with you, "Al!"
- 7 Day after election with the best man defeated. Even the Heavens wept! Discussion—Senior Class versus John Larson, and still he wasn't convinced.
- 9 Selection of class rings, which the Seniors hoped will be "ringers."
- 15 Three o'clock dismissal. P. T. A. meeting at Franklin.
- 16 Our Negative Team won the Debate from Escanaba's Affirmative.
- 21 Announcement of P.T.A. Thanksgiving Dance to be given Thursday night. More celebrating!
23. High School recess—a session of eating ice cream sandwiches.
24. The Freshmen submit to Initiation.
27. The Sophs enjoy a trip to the woods and a "tour" of the Paper Mill.
29. Thanksgiving—"nuff said." Dance tonight, come one, come all!
30. Free—It's still Thanksgiving for us.

December

- 5 Bob Finley believes in modernizing "Hamlet" to suit this generation—his version of a famous quotation—"to suffer the thousand natural 'socks' that flesh is heir to."
9. Talk of a Senior Ball—just talk, that's all.
10. The Kingsford Debaters visited the classrooms today. We enjoyed their visit. We won the debate and began a friendship we hope will always continue.
11. The Physics class got educated on their "dats and doshes."
13. Basketball game with Munising.
15. A "hectic" week, what with the Christmas holidays drawing nearer and nearer.
17. Gladstone Debate—What a debate team we have!
22. Senior fight—lots of rah, rah, and plenty of blah, blah,—pass the chocolates.
23. The school stages the customary Christmas pageant—angels, shepherds—strains of "Gloria in Excelsis"—Santa Claus for the youngsters (count us out), then Christmas vacation.
25. Merry Christmas, World!

Freshman Initiation

The lower classmen are more "grown up" than they used to be, the Freshmen were initiated in the evening this year. The formal ceremony was not so bad, but the preliminaries were anything but pleasant. Green ribbons and green ties were in evidence two days before the event. The Sophs "did the honors" as usual. The school auditorium was decorated in the traditional purple and gold, with a bit of green here and there in honor of the guests. Clyde Hirn, president of the Sophomore class, gave the customary greeting, Edward Corcoran, chairman, offered kindly advice, after which the fun began.

Lest we forget, the famous quartet, the happy twins, the merry housewives, the window-washers, the famous band and above all the joy of the Freshmen when proclaimed full pledged members of the student body. The affair terminated with a dance and everybody happy.

Thanksgiving Dance

The Thanksgiving Dance sponsored for the student body by the Parent Teacher's Association, has become an annual affair. We have always enjoyed the parties and appreciate the interest which this organization has shown in us. The social season is officially opened by this dance and the friendly spirit which it creates lasts throughout the year. The Parent-Teacher's Association stands back of us, and we want them to know that the student body is always ready to boost them.

One of the most gratifying results of the social activities at St. Joseph's is the large number of alumni who come to renew old friendships and enjoy a pleasant evening of dancing with their former schoolmates and friends. There was an exceptionally large number of "old faces" at the Thanksgiving Dance. The student body and the faculty welcomed them and want them to come again.

Football Banquet

A banquet was served by the Parent-Teacher's Association to the boys who had represented St. Joe's on the gridiron. Michael Stern as toastmaster carried on in his inimitable way. The guests who responded with short talks were Attorney Dennis McGinn, Attorney George Carr, Mr. H. K. Rammel of the Daily Press, Dr. Gordon Gleich, basketball coach, and our football coach, Leo Brunelle. Representative players and students who spoke were: George Stoik, our star cheerleader; Rowan Fitzharris, Joseph Vandendoom, Vincent McGee, gridiron players, and John Larson, student manager.

Coach Leo Brunelle was the high light of the evening. The boys showed their coach how much they appreciated his unselfish service. The big event of the evening was the election of Stafford LeDuc as honorary captain. "Staff" has the spirit and qualities that go to make up a real athlete. The affair ended with the characteristic pep!

January

2. First day back at school, but due to a "flu" epidemic we were tendered another vacation. So sad, wasn't it? Thanks to everybody who helped raise the per cent.
8. Students made things "hot" by a strike for heat! Demands were effective—radiators were pounded—and the parade of the "monkey wrenches" began.
10. Vulcan debate. The team takes a trip to a remote corner of Michigan—sad, but true, they didn't win.
11. Manistique basketball game.
16. The Senior pictures were taken today for the Annual. Everybody all dressed up, looking and feeling stiff—"Now, smile, just a bit."
17. The rings came and "oh's" and "ah's" were heard everywhere! They're different, but that's what we intended them to be.
21. Seniors received their proofs. Horrors! "How could I ever take such a terrible picture?" "It can't be mine."
2. Exams and exams reasons for the serious expressions on otherwise smiling countenances "I never thought we learned so much."
25. After such a strain, the teachers feared a "breakdown" for some, consequently a free day????—Those who do good will be rewarded, so we accepted the holiday and gave the establishment a much needed rest.

February

1. The Seniors had turned professional. Dr. Adam's Insane Asylum "shingle" was hung on their door.
7. Sophomores' Masquerade Hop in the Auditorium. Clowns, pirates, sailors, colonial belles, and the like, were the striking personages present.
8. Basketball game with Gladstone. Any car acceptable even a Ford became a Queen Elizabeth.
14. Mr. Frank Nolden extended the second invitation for the first semester all "A" students to attend the Kiwanis luncheon.
15. Game with St. Norbert's College and many school "backers" took the trip, among those who went were——could you guess?
21. Organization of the Student Council. Seniors were incited to be talkative and gave some inspiring and orderly words of advice to the student body. Go thou and do likewise.
22. Staff LeDuc played the organ while the boys sang to willing listeners. We're foolish to work hard for a living.
24. Talk given by Dr. Poole, head commissioner from Lansing. The younger generation shall have toxin-anti-toxin.
25. Oratorical and Declamatory contest. First place in oratory awarded to Mary Bernadette Brennan; in declamation, to Mildred Meyer.

Masquerade Hop

And what a "hop" it was! The Sophs are noted for their pep and activity, and it seemed that all the pep was in evidence at this dance. The success may be attributed to the fact that it pays to advertise. Notices were posted on the bulletins, announcing the event, and the Masquerade Hop was the chief topic of conversation. "What kind of an outfit will you wear?"

The dancers arrived all decked out for the gala occasion. The auditorium was decorated in the class colors—from the blue and silver of twenty-nine to the green and white of thirty-two. Lawrence Girard led Miss Grace Bennett in the grand march. The music was furnished by the Harmony Boys. Uncle Sam danced the finale hop, Little Red Riding Hood toddled, pirates and clowns waltzed and the belles of the 'nineties actually drank punch.

Everyone hopped as they never hopped before and never will again, and those who attended the affair are waiting for the Sophomores to do their "stuff" again.

March

- 5 A talk was delivered to the boys by Attorney Dennis McGinn. In line, Holy Name Boys!
- 14 Student Council gave an amusing and entertaining Radio Broadcasting Program. Hopetal songs in the future for the Broadcasters. Member Kate's harangue on "How to Mind Everybody's Business"?
- 15 St. Patrick's Day Program by the Juniors. Bob Finley, the typical Irishman, carried off the honors of the day with a "mock" Doll Dance! We liked Mike and Bob best when they were "short." Remember "When You're in Escanaba"?
- 19 Debaters and chaperones left for Kingsford today for the debate Friday night. The result was a draw. The travelers came back ready to give reports on one of the nicest and most interesting trips they had ever taken.
- 22 Mike Stern's "cookie duster" has disappeared, poor Mike! Now they call him "Baldy."
- 24 Easter vacation. Farewell 'til April.

April

- 10 Norbert Todd and Fred Larson left today for DePere to attend the Holy Cross-St. Norbert debate in the interest of next year's debating squad.
- 11 "St. Joe's High Sends Off Students!" Mary Stump, Helen Gallagher, Eileen Murphy, Eugene Raymond, Joseph Vandenhoom, Michael Stern and Robert Finley, delegates for the Press Convention at Minneapolis, left today—that is, left amid a shower of rice—and rice!
- 12 Our orator and declaimer left for Newberry this morning for the contest. Result: Mildred Meyer, first. Mary Bernadette Brennan, came, saw and congratulated.
- 15 Delegates were welcomed back from Minneapolis. The band and everybody but the town Mayor met the train!
- 16 We hear echoes of the ride the Senior girls took—Remember the co-operation on the shitting. Control yourselves, think of the gallon of gas which we bought and couldn't use.
- 18 The delegates gave interesting and "mirth" producing reports on their successful trip. How are the acoustics, Bob?
- 19 Juniors are "knee deep in work" in preparations for the Prom. It's all right, Juniors, the Seniors went through it once, too.
- 22 Surrounded by artistic Japanese scenery, the happy dancers glided to the tunes of the orchestra. To the deserving Juniors—A rising vote of thanks.
- 23 Prom spirit lingering on—'Twas the nicest party we ever had—and that from the Seniors means something. Selection of Senior Class Play, The Watcher at the Gate.
- 24 No Student Council Assembly this week.
- 25 Sophomore Spring Festival—the Sophs know how to do things, too.
- 30 We forgot to tell you—all this time we've been laboring on the annual. What's it going to be like? Wait and see.
- 30 Our declaimer goes to Marquette today for the district contest. Good luck, "Milly."

As in former years, the social event most eagerly anticipated, most elaborately planned, most happily remembered, was the Junior Prom.

Monday, April 22, was the day. During the two weeks previous, leisure was an unknown quantity among the Juniors. Girls were busy making wistaria, painting Japanese lanterns, weaving stiken cords, boys displayed equal skill in the use of scissors and saws, in weaving dainty cherry blossoms from Dennison's formless crepe, and in persuading tickle wires to stay taut.

If, as Keat says, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever"—and we believe it is, then the vision that greeted the guests of the Juniors on Prom night is marked for immortality. "Aesthetic—exotic—breathing the air of old Japan!" Let those who will describe it. They who wrought it—a labor of love—found keen satisfaction in the work and ample reward in the pleasure it brought the Seniors and their friends. After all, it was neither the artistry in design nor the finesse in execution, but the gay-lit faces of youth that worked the enchantment and made the scene a veritable Arcady—one to delight in—not one to analyze. Or was it just "Alice's Wonderland" come true? Surely, when the music began, "nobody waited for turns."

And "at the sound of many footsteps (all in perfect rhythm to the music of the march) Alice looked around, eager to see the Queen." Nor was she disappointed. The grand march was forming, led by Norbert Todd and Miss Lucile Sauers, followed by George Stoik and Miss Kathryn Payne. "Mostly Kings and Queens," said Alice. Princes and Princesses, if you prefer.

Success, not even social success, is ever an accident. There was that attention to detail, that forethought for the comfort and pleasure of their guests on the part of committee members that marked the affair the social event of the year. The committees in charge of decoration were Lucille Sauers, Robert Gasman, Joseph Vandendoom, Eugene Raymond, Olive Ammel, refreshments, Catherine Murray, Dorothy Hemes, Isabelle Vickers, Violet Bramer; reception, Alice McGovern, Ursilla Johnson, Norbert Todd.

Prom Patrons and Patronesses were: Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Finley, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. LaViolette, Dr. and Mrs. L. P. Treiber, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Vandendoom.

Spring Festival

On April the twenty-fifth, the Sophomores again entertained and all were invited (who bought tickets).

The auditorium was gaily decorated and really suggested spring. Birch trees were set along each side and on these were placed branches of divers colors which lent color to the affair. Brightly tinted spring shades gave the final touch.

For refreshments the noble Sophomores served the most invigorating punch of the season (ask the Seniors). The peppy Wolverines went through their repertoire of fox trots, waltzes and hops with the same artistry. The pianist furnished a novelty number, much talked about, when he played the old-time schottische. Although the dance was informal, there was a grand march which was led by Neil LaFave and Miss Lucile Lantz, Sophomores.

May

- 1 Tennis enthusiasts decorate the court. "Slam it"—"What a backhand!" "How he can serve aces so often," is beyond us.
- 2 The Seniors are keyed up over the class play.
- 3 Don't be alarmed—these people who are running up and down the street are none other than St. Joe's track men.
- 4 The Tadpoles die.
- 6 We begin to feel like living—, but anything related to work is hard, very hard.
- 7 The results of the "Flag Contest" are due any time. The lower classmen are a patriotic crowd, and the upper classmen are loyal enough to cheer them on.
- 8 Edmond Godin, Burtson Fitzharris, Edward Corcoran, Etzel Bawden of the Sophomore Class, and Kathleen Todd and Alta Brotherton, of the Freshman Class, deliver their essays, "Old Glory's Greatest Glory." Then a Patriotic Pantomime—You know the kind you are accustomed to see at St. Joseph's.
- 11 Mother's Day, crowning of the May Queen. God Bless our Mothers!
- 14 Tennis, track—or what have you?

June

- 1 "What is so rare as a day in June?"—Local track meet.
- 2 Draw the curtains—turn on the foot lights—behold THE PURPLE AND GOLD of '29. Do you like the green cover?
- 3 Something tells us that the end is approaching.
- 4 The Sophomores go in search of specimens.
- 5 "Autograph my annual?" "Write lots!"
- 7 Exams—exams—no rest for the !
- 8 Upper Peninsula Track Meet. We practice for the Grand March and chorus.
- 9 Baccalaureate Sunday.
- 10 The Classiest of Classes has Class Day.
- 12 The Senior Class united to the end.
- 13 Commencement—(midst daffodils and diplomas)—'29 says good-bye.

Social Hour

A highly pleasing innovation, brought about through efforts of the Student Council, was the weekly Social Hour. Every Thursday an hour was designated for social diversion. Card playing, forensic contests and the programs which were ably presented by the Dramatic Club and other organizations furnished entertainment at these meetings. The varied programs were spicy and interesting.

Miss Bernadette Brennan, president of the Student Council, presided over each meeting and then turned the program over to the chairman of the day.

Students entertained themselves by the call of the Council. Harold Fredericksen and Lawrence Grand, school song birds, were especially popular. Impromptu acts presented by groups of students received hearty applause.

On one occasion a number of Senior girls presented a one-act play, entitled, "Sing a Song of Seniors," before the student body. The scene portrayed was that of a college girl's room upon her return to school. The actors performed in a very realistic manner and gave the audience a typical scene of college life.

A short interesting radio playlet, formulated by several students, furnished a pleasant pastime at one of the gatherings. The witticisms and nonsensical statements made by the actors had a pleasing effect upon the audience.

The Junior Class contributed to the entertainment fund by dividing into groups and rendering impromptu acts. All, excepting the performers, enjoyed the Junior antics.

A tax collector favored us with a short review of the A, B, C's, which, fortunately, he did not remember. However deceiving was his disguise at first, we soon recognized Mr. Stern, our Shakespeare in disguise.

In addition to this, debates and more serious forms of entertainment were presented. A group of Junior boys debated the St. Lawrence Waterway question. A heated controversy ensued in which both parties handled the topic in a competent manner. The judges' decision was in favor of the negative.

One afternoon the student body was entertained by brief talks given by several students who had attended the oratorical contest at Newberry and the National Scholastic Press Association Convention at Minneapolis. The debaters, who attended the Holy Cross-St. Norbert's debate at DePere, also gave interesting talks on their trip and on the debate.

The Social Hour was originated to foster co-operation among the students, both socially and intellectually. An earnest endeavor is being made to accomplish this end and it will eventually become a reality.

JOHN LARSON, Athletic Manager. Johnny was our capable manager during the past year. A hard worker, a loyal supporter of his Alma Mater, that's 'Swede.' Here's to the fellow who did his bit for his school in athletics and didn't wear a suit.

LEO BRUNELLE, Coach. To Leo Brunelle, our faithful Leo, the school and the squad owe a great deal more than they can ever repay. We, who have worked under him, know and appreciate his tireless efforts. To all of us he was a real friend, a true sportsman, a good coach, a man whom we all admired and respected. We, the Seniors who are graduating, extend to him our sincerest thanks for everything he has done in our behalf. We are grateful.

STAFF LEDUC, Honorary Captain. In recognition for four years of splendid service on the Varsity squad. Staff was elected Honorary Captain of the Purple and Gold warriors. He was a hard tackler, a clean player, a real sport, the requisites of a good football player.

On September 29, we took on our traditional enemy, Escanaba. The first half was all St. Joe's. By splendid teamwork, and good blocking, the squad scored 12 points in the first half and held them scoreless. It was a different story the second half. A rejuvenated "Orange and Black" team, with strong off-tackle smashes and a deceitful passing attack, scored 21 points to beat us 21-12.

The basketball season opened soon after the official close of the football season. The practices were held at the High School gym due to the lack of a gym of our own. The squad was cut to twenty men after the first week of practice in order that the coaches could devote more time to the first and second teams. The schedule, which was the hardest ever played by a St. Joe quintet, included some of the best teams in the Peninsula.

Track was added to the curriculum of sports at St. Joe. This minor sport was readily accepted by the student body, twenty-five students responding to Coach Brunelle's call for candidates. The team competed in a dual meet with Esky, in the Escanaba Relay Carnival, and in the U. P. meet at Menominee. Judged by their showing the first year, the track prospects for next year are very bright.

Hamlet: Behold; 'tis the great Scandahoovian, my father.

Ghost: Yes, my son, I have bad news: your Uncle Claudius and your mother, now Mrs. Claudius, are crooks.

Hamlet: Say not so!

Ghost: 'Tis the truth. They froze my radiator with bootleg gin, and I've never been the same since. But stay, you must revenge me.

Hamlet: With my life, m'lord.

Ghost: Attainw! I doo thee "Two Gun" Hamlet, a member of North West Mounted, get your man!

Act 2.

Hamlet stands in pensive mood. Enter Polonius.

Polonius: Dost know me, m'lord?

Hamlet: Dost. Thou art Lon Chaney.

Polonius (aside): Alas and woe is me, the poor boy is cracked.

Polonius: No, your salary is too small.

Hamlet: But sir, two can live as cheaply as one.

Enter Rosie and Gilly.

Hamlet: Hello Ike! Hello Mike!

Polonius (patting him on the back): Good luck boys.

Hamlet: Thou are crooks! Claudius hast hired three to pay me off! Git outta here. (pause)

Hamlet: To be or not to be, that is the question.

Horatio: Here, here, m'lord, this act's bad enough without starting this. Come, they must drop the curtain.

A Mad Tea Party

Act 3.

Room in castle. Hamlet pays off Polonius.

Hamlet: Mother, I am in fearful circumstances. Can you lend me five ducats 'til pay day?

Polonius in skylight.

Polonius: Ah nah, his last week's allowance he's spending already bah!

Hamlet: Who's that? (pulls sawed off shot-gun and fires twice. Polonius and a square yard of plaster fall to the floor.)

Mother: 'Tis Polonius!

Polonius die

Hamlet: Is he dead?

Polonius: I'm fully murdered and was the guy that done it. (al the Marmes' I'm gonna dance wid the guy wot brung me!

Hamlet: The rat! I'll bet a shekel he's dead. Any takers?

Polonius: Right here! (does the Highland Fling, collects the bet and dies the second time)

Exit Hamlet (disguised as a waste basket to escape detection).

Enter King, Rosencrantz and Guildenstern.

Rosencrantz: I'm Mike!

Guildenstern: I'm Ike!

King: Where's Polonius?

All: Playing poker.

King: Fetch him

Later.

Messenger: He aint there.

All: Don't say aint.

King: Get Hamlet. He'll find him.

Enter Hamlet.

King: Where's Polonius?

Hamlet: Methinks he's dead.

King: Say not so! Who paid him off?

Hamlet: I did it with my little cannon. (pats shotgun affectionately)

King: Where did you put him?

Hamlet: If you don't find him in a minute, you'll lose him as you go up the stairs.

All: There's something rotten in the state of Denmark!

Act 4.

Hamlet practices--"To be or not to be." Enter Ophelia.

Ophelia: Hello, m'lord. I have some presents of yours which I must return.

Hamlet: (coldly): I never gave you anything.

Ophelia: But, my lord, you did.

Hamlet: I admit, I loved you once.

Ophelia: That's what you made me believe.

A Mad Tea Party

Hamlet: Well, I fooled you. I didn't love you.

Ophelia: I've been deceived.

Hamlet: Get thee to a nunnery! You should know better than to believe a man when he says he loves thee. We are all bums; never believe us.

Ophelia: (drops on her knees and groans) But I love you.

Hamlet: (spurns her, collects gifts) Leave my presents and go.

Enter Marcellus and Mr. Claudius.

Mr. Claudius: I must see her.

Marcellus: Indeed, I fear she is quite cracked.

Mrs. Claudius: How is she touched?

Marcellus: She makes foolish motions, and sings all the latest songs.

Exit Marcellus and re-enter with Ophelia.

Ophelia: Where is the beautiful Mrs. Claudius, queen of the snuff blowers?

Mrs. Claudius: Hello, dear.

Ophelia: (hops around singing popular songs)

Mrs. Claudius: I fear that her father's death has upset her.

Marcellus: Maybe so, but it doesn't help at all, now that Hamlet turned her down for that little blonde, either.

Ophelia: (hops around, opens lid of the well and jumps in with a splash)

Marcellus: (looking into the well) Alas, poor Ophelia, I knew her well.

Graveyard scene. The gravedigger is digging a grave. Enter Hamlet and Horatio.

Hamlet: What doest thou, Knave?

Clown: I dig.

Hamlet: What for?

Clown: Three-fifty a day.

Hamlet: What's that for? Cause this foolish rabble!

Clown: To a grave.

Hamlet: For whom?

Clown: For Ophelia.

Hamlet: Egad, my best girl! In case of fire, break glass! Alas, poor Yorick, I knew her well. Boo, Hoo!

Exit on Horatio's neck. Laertes and Hamlet dueling.

Mr. and Mrs. Claudius on throne. Horatio, referee.

Horat: You boys can do better than Sharkey and Striking.

Hamlet: I got you!

Horatio marks one up on board.

King: Time out! What is the score?

Horatio: Hamlet leads 3 to 1 at the end of the seventh inning.

King drinks poisoned wine and is carried off by Mrs. Claudius and two attendants. Laertes lands a pretty one and Hamlet is mortally wounded.

Hamlet: Ugh! He got me. Take care of the wife and kids. (gives one last kick and passes out. Attendants carry him off on carpet)

CURTAIN

A Mad Tea Party

Long Tales

George Stolk, while trying to saw a log, was heard to mutter, "Gee, is this Ironwood?"

In some organizations there is a lot of graft—in the Senior Room there is a lot of draft.

Mid year 1911 the seniors were about to plunge into a class election.

Teacher: Gene, what are you talking about?

Gene: The election.

Teacher (seemingly surprised): What election?

Gene: Hoover Smith.

We heard that Tarzan Raymond calls his Ford the crate, because there're always a couple of chickens in it.

"How's the Senior Class room?"

"It's cold -no fuelin'."

"That's handing them a line," said the coach as he gave the paper the football line-up.

Teacher in Typewriting class: Why aren't you at work?

Cold Senior: Aw, I had to break the ice off my typewriter.

We heard that the guy that invented the refrigerator was a Senior at St. Joe's once. Well, he had plenty of inspiration.

Skopp (after football practice): What's good for stiffness?

Red Fitzharris: Exercise.

The next day Red wasn't at school.

We heard that the Freshman Class is divided, the boys in section one and the girls in section two. We also heard that Mike Stern volunteered to teach section two.

Gannon: How do you like the Senior room?

Staff: Cold for the first hour, after that you get numb.

Neil Lafave: Aw, I can't learn this Catechism.

Bob Rodgers: Too bad, what you need is a Kittychism.

Worried: Say, that Freshman promised to sing again.

Happy: Don't worry, she might forget.

Teacher: Wait until you see your report card.

Herman: S'all right, there's no hurry.

Lou: Guess what, I was born on the 4th of July.

Tub: No wonder the world revolted!

Tarzan Raymond tried putting a slug in a scale, but he didn't get a weigh with it.

Teacher: Are you free this period?

Student: Yes.

From back of the room: Then give yourself away.

Blunderland

We heard that Tuffy Fitzharris on receiving the wrong number on the telephone, told the operator to change signals.

Heard in Latin class: Achates arrested Aeneas. The Trojans stretch out, and embrace their tired limbs. Joyfully the Greeks issue forth from Hollywood.

Don: Where is "The Man in the Forest"?

John Olinger: He's still there.

W. Wilson: Boy, I like to listen to a presidential campaign.

Tarzan R.: Did you ever listen to one before?

Wallace: Yah, last year.

Girl in typing class: Where is "U"?

Boy in back of room: Here I am.

Futz: Say, I'm gonna be a second Lindbergh.

Another: Say, who is this guy Lindbergh? Is he from town?

Frasher: Say, did you see an auto go by here?

Ole: Who's Anne Auto?

Teacher: What do you know about the city of Troy?

Olinger: Oh, it's just a one horse town.

Buck: Do you like popcorn balls?

Don: I don't know. I never attended one.

Freshie: Can I have a dance?

Bored: Sure, go ahead, I'm going to give one myself soon.

One bright, sunny afternoon the Senior Class was suddenly aroused from their deep slumber, or rather "study," by a very interesting and amusing incident — "It Goes Like This."

We were deeply engrossed in the dead language of Latin. Suddenly there was a deep hush. A deathly silence! Everyone looked around for the thing that could quiet the Senior Class. Soon Staff noticed it, and he let out a yell that would have put a full fledged Indian brave to shame. It was but a moment when all discovered it. What was it?
Well, if you must know — Mike Stern had spat on Following this little occurrence a class yell was composed by some of the Senior poets. It remains:

I spat,
You spat,
We all spat,
On Mike's spats

"What's that?"

"A fire drill. Shut up and open the door."

"Wait a minute. It's stuck."

"Sa good thing this is just practice."

"Yah? Well you try . . . There! The door's open. C'mon."

Bang! Bang!

"Hey, quit shovin'."

"Would you please walk on your own feet?"

"Take the lead outta yer dogs and I won't be walking on you."

"Ouch! Say you . . . ? ? ? ? ? . . . * * * * *

"Wow, it's cold out here without a coat an' hat. Guess I'll go get mine."

"Oh, snap out of it! We won't be here all day."

"Sh! Sh! There's the fire chief."

Silence.

Huge masculine voice: "Say, you guys, what's holdin' you? It just took fifteen minutes to empty the school! Now get back in, and in a hurry."

"There you go, why didn't you get the door open quicker, Jack? Now we'll get a bawling out, which isn't unusual anymore."

"You're not so hot. Why didn't you do something besides yell at me?"

"C'mon! Let's run."

Crash! Bang! ! ! !

"Ow! Let's not. I missed a step."

"Where? Good thing we don't have these things often."

"Shut that door, I'm frozen."

"Say, don't you enjoy fire drills?"

Grand chorus: NO!! NO!!!!

It is January. It is morning. It is very, very cold. The Senior doors open. In step the Seniors. Each goes to his respective refrigerator. Out come candles and cigar lighters. Various wisecracks are muttered through cold cracked blue lips. Feet freeze and the numbness rises to all parts of the body. Our breath freezes, our ink freezes and even our hearts freeze. Our brains, bless 'em, would freeze, too, if we had any! Then the faculty tells us we come to school to keep warm. We are misunderstood. We are Seniors. It is January. It is morning. It is very, very, very cold.

Writhing

DEAR OLD "PAL OF MINE":

Just a line to let you know I'm "Too Tired" to make the trip down, although I'm "Pinin' Just For You," I won't be able to visit you 'til "Lilac Time."

Say I've been bothered with "Memories" lately, guess I got the "St. Louis Blues." "Do you remember the time" when "I faw down and go boom" and that "Old Gang of Mine"? Gee, pal, right now "I can't give you anything but love," I'm dead broke. I don't s'pose you could lend me a twenty spot? "It all Depends on You" and I aint "Talking to the Moon," "Will Yuh Huh"? If you do I'll "Get By" all right.

How's the wife and kids? Dontcha like "Avalon Town"? I think it's a "Beautiful" place. You should see "My Ohio Home." It's "High up on a Hill Top." I call it "My Blue Heaven."

Say the other night early "In the Evening," "The Pal that I Loved Stole the Gal that I Loved," and I'm "Broken Hearted." But if I ever catch that guy I'll "Knock the 'L' out of Kelly" then I hope "My Dreams Will All Come True." All I do now is sit and watch the "Sweethearts on Parade" and most of them are "Doin' the Raccoon," too, but "How About Me?" "There's two lonesome people in the whole wide world, that's Me and the Man in the Moon." I even lost my "Sweet Heart of Sigma Chi" and "My Gal Sal." Now, don't accuse me of being sentimental, cuz "Who Wouldn't be Jealous of a Girl Like That?" She sure was the "Cream in my Coffee." The other night I dreamt that I was sailing o'er the "Moonlit Waters" under the "Carolina Moon" with "Mary Ann." Suddenly the boat sprung a leak, and just then my landlady threw a pail of cold water on me. I jumps up and says, "Say, I ain't 'Afraid of You' " but she hauls off and wraps a broom around my neck. I still hear the "Bells of St. Mary's" just like a "Melody From Out of the Sky," and then "Came the Dawn."

She got a cute kid, though, they call him "Danny Boy." He wants to be a soldier, always talking about going "Over There." His uncle just taught him how to "Pucker Up and Whistle" and the noise is terrible.

Well, I guess I'll go back to my "Ivy Covered Shack," "Just Me and My Shadow," "All Alone."

Your old friend,

HERMAN ROSENCRANTZ

P S: "Tell Me You Do" send me twenty bucks and I'll smother you with "Dream Kisses."

Blubberly Blubb

My first peep of day was taken in Africa. Well I remember how I hunted the jungle beasts. Those were happy days, and there I stayed until two days after my third birthday, when I was exiled for bringing home ten elephants and having fifteen in possession, which exceded the limit by three.

The City of Escanaba immediately snapped me up and invited me to come up and take the characteristic winter taste out of the city water. I accepted and at the age of four was elected mayor. I kept this position for three years, and then was elected Senator for the State. Through my oratorical powers I was made Governor of Michigan on my tenth birthday. At fourteen, I resigned to enter St. Joe's High School.

For four years I composed the entire Varsity backfield on the football team. I was a seven threat man. I could pass, run, kick, cry, wring my hands, referee, win the game, and act as radio announcer. In the winter I played every basketball position except one, that of guard, which I gave to an old friend as a Christmas gift. I received so many awards in the form of letters that I was named defendant in a breach-of-promise case. I monopolized so many of the school activities that they were glad when I graduated myself. (Author's note: I had been appointed principal, and superintendent of schools, as well as janitor.) After pledging myself to keep the Senior Room warm in winter and cool in summer, I went out into the world for a year before attending college. I got a job at the Northwestern Railroad Shops, and in eleven months resigned my job as Vice President, to attend the University of Minnesota.

Here I met Clara Bow, and as it was Leap Year she tried to snare me, but I was always invincible to female wiles. During my Freshman summer vacation, I stopped the World War and signed the Armistice. For this feat I received telegrams of congratulations from Napoleon, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Jr., and Babe Ruth.

My remaining three years at college were spent in wandering from one institution to another, wherever my services were needed most. I was coach at Michigan, helped Georgia beat Tech and win the National Championship. I joined various track teams under different aliases, as Jack Elder, Nurmi, etc. I jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge on a bet and in collecting it, turned professional. I therefore helped the Chicago Cubs beat the Yanks in the World Series. I was sent to the showers for sending the people home by hitting a homer every time I came to bat.

I was getting old so I again entered politics. I cleaned up several billion on Allison Drug and Ohio Copper so I was a rich man. I formed a syndicate with Mussolini, and we ran Europe, including Great Britain. Big Boy Thompson of Chicago was appointed king of the latter country because of preference. Mussy and I ran the outfit on the dried herring and snuff we exported from Minnesota. My old Alma Mater chewed it on the gridiron out of pure patriotism.

I had now been a huge success in all ventures which I had entered. I had solved the Einstein Theory, and entered the Scientific field. The first week I invented a perpetual motion machine and discovered the fourth dimension. I then made a rocket and on my forty-eighth birthday I shot myself in the general direction of the moon and I landed on Mars. Luckily, I got this autobiography off by air-mail, and I hope the world receives it.

Intelligently yours,

J. BLUBBERLY BLUBB

'At once the whole pack rose up into the air and came flying down upon her. Alice got up and ran off, thinking what a wonderful dream it had been.'

The graphic is a rectangular advertisement with a decorative border. At the top center is a circular emblem featuring a classical-style face, possibly a sun or moon, with rays emanating from it. Below the emblem, the text "PONTIAC Engraving and Service have" is written in a stylized, bold font. This is followed by a paragraph of text: "engraving and electrotyping for schools, libraries, and all who appreciate the value of having the best work done." Below this paragraph, the words "PONTIAC ENGRAVING ELECTROTYPE CO." are printed in a large, bold, sans-serif font. At the bottom, the address "100 N. 1st St. Detroit, Mich." is written in a smaller font.
